Welcome

Today, 8th October 1994 is but two days after the 6th October when Bath beat Exeter at the Rec and Wasps are honoured and privileged to be Bath's opponents at the Rec on this famous Anniversary - a mere 100 years on.

However Wasps pleasure in celebrating this Centenary with you, stops short of repeating the result and the pleas of our Committee and myself to the Team to show generosity by letting Bath win, have fallen on very deaf ears! Mind you since leagues began in 1987, Wasps have never had any intention of letting Bath win, whatsoever, but unfortunately you have done so more times than we have liked! Our games, whether at the Rec or Sudbury (and twice in Cup Finals at Twickenham) have always been stirring contests of a competitive kind, not unlike those between Russia and Germany in the early 1940s! More recently there have sadly been a number of occasions when 30 confused players and 8000 disappointed spectators have suffered refereeing aberrations, which in one case effectively decided the outcome of the League. No doubt Mr Murray of Scotland will not be unaware of this unfortunate history and will ensure that on this day, not only will the better side win, but above all the players and spectators will be allowed to enjoy themselves.

Just recalling past player confrontations such as: Hill v Melville or Bates, Sole v Probyn, Halliday v Simms, Bailey v Swift, Emeruwa v Hall, The Judge v Coochie, Guscott v Clough - all such wonderful players, brings us to contemplate the fascinating pairings we can anticipate today ... Redman v Hadley, Ryan v Hall, Clarke v Dallaglio, Hopley v de Glanville but sadly, no longer, Andrew v Barnes, whose new biographies will, I suspect, reflect their different life styles, as did their play.

What a feast to look forward to, and as Jane Austen once said:-

"Who can ever be tired of Bath"
