Conor O'Shea

Conor O'Shea was announced as Harlequins' new Director of Rugby on 16th November 2009 and started the role on 15th March 2010.

O'Shea joined his former club, London Irish, in 1995, making 127 first-team appearances for the club, scoring 412 points and 62 tries.

After his playing career ended in 2000, he remained with the Exiles as Director of Rugby and guided Irish to the Powergen Cup in 2002. That year he won the Zurich Rugby Director of the Season Award (jointly with Brendan Venter).

O'Shea left London Irish in 2005 to take up an appointment with the Rugby Football Union as Director of Regional Academies. In 2008 he left his position with the RFU to take up a role with the English Institute of Sport as National Director.

The Opposition
Harlequins

With Aviva Premiership Rugby now entering round 20, it has been a rollercoaster of a ride for Conor O'Shea as he enters into the final straight of his first full season as Director of Rugby.

In his own words, it has been probably the tightest ever Premiership and with Quins spot respectively, with just 1 point separating them, his words will be echoing through many fans' minds.

Quins' home record domestically has been impressive, with the London side having only lost at the Stoop in the first home game against Northampton Saints and more recently (and maybe

Although Quins' away record in the Premiership hasn't been as strong, a memorable win against Northampton Saints at Franklins Gardens on New Year's Day was a great start to

There was a disappointing end to the LV= Cup campaign when Quins lost to Newcastle in the semi final stage of the competition, having dominated the pool stages by topping their pool and finishing with more points than any other out in the 80th minute by the Falcons.

Quins' European campaign has seen some memorable trips, with the team travelling to Italy to face Prato where the whole town, including the mayor, turned out to give
