Did you know?

Sale Sharks won the Guinness Premiership title in 2005/06.

Mike Brewer

A former member of the All Blacks' back row (32 caps), Mike Brewer played provincial rugby for Otago and Canterbury. Since retiring, he has coached in Italy and at Leinster before becoming a member of Scotland's administration in 2008. He worked with the Flying Fijians in 2009 before moving to Cheshire this Summer.

The Opposition Sale Sharks

Sale Sharks arrive at The Rec this afternoon "under new management" – again. "New" is certainly a key word describing the Stockport-based club: new Chief Executive Mick Hogan, once of Wigan Warriors and Newcastle Falcons. New Head Coach, former All Black back row man Mike Brewer. New Academy Manager Ray Unsworth, also ex-Wigan, new captain, James Gaskell, the club's youngest ever, and, at the latest count, a gathering of new first team players into double figures.

Brewer has revolutionised training regimes at the club's Carrington training base, and has instilled different strategies amongst the squad. England men Charlie Hodgson and Mathew Tait have yet to feature after minor operations, and fellow international Mark Cueto made a delayed re-appearance against Saracens two weekends ago.

After a pre-season defeat (26-8) against French champions Clermont Auvergne, followed by some white-water rafting and waterfall abseiling, the team returned to the U.K. to defeat Glasgow Warriors (23-22) and Benetton Treviso (28-6), before the Aviva Premiership opener against Newcastle Falcons. The game was as good as won by half time, ending up 38-15 in the Sharks' favour. A televised trip to Saracens followed,
